SOCIETY

A pretty dance was given at Odd Fellows' hall last night by the sophomore class of Honolulu High School. The hall was decorated in the class colors of gold and green. Vines were liberally festooned and yellow leis fashioned in the class date '10 appeared at conspicuous points. Dominating the scheme was a large American flag. The decoration committee consisted of Masters Gavien Bush, Nat Blatt, Ed. Carden, Austin White, William Barthardt, Misses Irene Gerz, Eola Logan, Aileen Nott, Constance Simpson, Isabel Namanu, Frances Otremba. Music was furnished by Kaul's orchestra and a large number of the young people, together with a sprinkling of their grownup friends, enjoyed themselves until nearly last car.

Miss Agnes J. Smith was one of the departing passengers on the Alameda on Wednesday last. She goes east to spend two or three years with relatives.

Some time during the present month a benefit will be given for the Hawaii yacht fund by Manager Cooley and the members of the Elfreth company, now playing at the Okeford. The idea is Mr. Cooley's, who offered the services of his company, the offer being taken up at once by the yacht committee.

Ranford Worthing, a prominent citizen of San Diego, is here on a tour which will extend to the South Sea Islands.

George Rolph, wife and daughter, returned by the Alameda to the Coast yesterday after a visit of about a month in Honolulu. Mr. Rolph is the general manager of the Crockett Refinery.

The newly elected officers of the St. Clement's Woman's Guild, chosen at the annual meeting of that organization on Tuesday afternoon, are: Mrs. Osborne, president; Mrs. William Thompson, vice president; Mrs. O. A. Steven, treasurer; Mrs. William Wall, secretary; Mrs. Herbert Mist, directress, and Mrs. H. P. Wood, assistant directress.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Morton Riggs have moved from their Lunaillo street residence to 2355 King street. The Stackers have taken the house just vacated by Mr. and Mrs. Riggs.

A very enjoyable dance was given on Friday night by the management of the Moana Hotel, the affair being a farewell and a leap year hop combined. It has been since announced, however, that the hotel is not to be altogether closed, so that the farewell part of the dance is a misnomer.

The Seaside has been the scene of a number of very pleasant informal dances lately, the one given on Friday night being well attended despite the rather stormy weather. Manager Stout is making many friends in Honolulu and his management of the hotel makes these dances very popular ones.

Consul and Madame Chang Tso Fan will receive this morning from eleven o'clock until noon in honor of the Chinese New Year celebration.

Among the out-of-town visitors in the city this week are Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hind, of Kona, who arrived on Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Baldwin, of Maui, who have been spending some time in town, left for their home on Friday.

Cards have been issued for a reception at the Kilauea Art League tomorrow evening at half past eight to view an exhibition of jewelry designed by May Mott-Smith Cunningham and a collection of paintings and craft work by well known artists and craftsmen. Mrs. W. F. Frear, Mrs. E. A. Mott-Smith, Mrs. George R. Carter, Mrs. C. B. Cooper, Mrs. F. M. Swanzey, Mrs. A. G. Hawes Jr., Mrs. Gerrit P. Wilder, Mrs. J. P. Cooke, Mrs. H. M. von Holt and Mrs. W. R. Brinckerhoff are the patronesses.

Mrs. C. M. Cooke Jr., Mrs. J. A. Johnson and B. F. Beardmore, are the ones representing the Manoa Tennis club to arrange for the formal opening of the splendid new courts in the valley. The date of the opening has not been set as yet, but the committee are arranging for the affair and the near future should see it. The new court is one of which the club members

THE KINGDOM OF CARLOS

The cause of Portugal's crises has always been the same. It has always been the result of parliamentary impotence, the consequences of the errors of the two great parties so long in power. From a political point of view—and at the present time no other point of view would be practical—according to an article in the Revue Generale (Brussels), Portugal's institutions are similar to the institutions of the other constitutional monarchies of the old continent, but the governmental methods are very different, and the executive and legislative powers of Portugal clash more frequently than the corresponding powers of other countries.

Often forced to act without the support of the legislative bodies, the government is accused of making attacks upon the national constitution. To say that the so-called "dictator," Prime Minister Joao Franco, is more to be blamed than his predecessors, is to ignore contingencies and to deny the present needs of the country. The same men have stood at the head of the government, fighting against the same difficulties with the same weapons more than a quarter of a century. Looking at nothing but the dates of the reinstallation of the prime ministers, it would seem that the rotary system of government, the system of ministerial alterations, might have the advantage of giving a man a long term of office cut by vacations; but if we count the costs of the sacrifices made to prolong the existence of the cabinets, we see the error of such an opinion. At Lisbon the strongest governmental party suffers as much from the importunities of its friends as from the dissensions provoked by its opponents in Parliament. For example: to satisfy the ambitions of his friends, and to answer to the spite of his enemies, the Progressist Prime Minister changed his officials four times within eight months.

Senhor Franco accepted the King's charge to form a ministry, and within twenty-four hours formed a cabinet of his own associates, a ministry composed of homines novi in every sense of the term. "Whatever errors they may develop, they will have no skeletons to confront them when their enemies open the political closets of the past." The press had lauded the old parties too long to give favorable notice to their successors, but the people welcomed the men who ask for nothing but time to show what they can do. The general opinion is that the reformers did not come too soon.

When the deputies and peers came to the King and told him that Franco had cast off his Parliament to satisfy his taste for dictating the King might have said a good deal. Being a man of calm mind he contented himself
